Fig 5: Mode Category of Tweet vs. Position in Polls

Each bar is a percentage of the number of times that a candidate polled at a certain posiiton and before the next poll, their tweets most often fell in one of the above categories. The poll position of a candidate being represented above is the most recent poll before the window of time starts. The boolean search terms used to generate the category classifications can be found in the appendix